

TRAIN AND TRUCK CRASH KILLS 1

CAPPEL CROSSING ON ROCK ISLAND NEAR MOKENA DEATH SCENE AS HEAVY FOG SHUTS OUT VIEW

The Cappel crossing east of Mokena was the scene of a fatal accident Monday morning, about nine o'clock when a fast east bound Rock Island passenger train hit a truck loaded with crushed stone, instantly killing Walter Ebert, the driver. He was the 18 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Ebert of Frankfort township. He had been in the employ of Henry Yunker driving his truck hauling stone for a road building job in Frankfort township.

It is thought Ebert failed to see the flier due to a heavy blanket of fog which enveloped the whole territory and which was so dense that one could hardly see objects ten feet away. A few minutes after the crash the fog lifted.

When the locomotive hit the big truck, the impact was so terrific that it hurled the passengers out of their seats. The crushed stone was hurled high in the air and rattled on the car roofs like hailstones. The fireman was injured about the head when bits of glass from the broken cab window hit him as also did some of the flying stone. The front of the engine was also damaged disabling it so that another engine had to pull the train into Chicago. The train was delayed over an hour.

The truck was torn apart, the rear wheels and body part of the truck was hurled on the west bound main track. The front part of the truck was literally blown to pieces and parts scattered along the right of way for several hundred feet. The body of the driver was found lifeless between the two tracks. A west bound freight train came along at the time of the crash. The engineer stopped and had to pull the wreckage of the truck off the track with his engine before he could proceed. Deputies from the office of the Will County coroner arrived a short time later.

Mr. Ebert is survived by his parents, three brothers, many relatives and a host of friends. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon from the St. Peter Evangelical church in Frankfort. Burial was in the Pleasant hill cemetery.

The Cappel crossing has been the scene of many accidents and efforts were made to have this crossing closed sometime ago and it was suggested that the highway be run on the north side of the tracks to the route 51 subway, but this plan was turned down. Then a committee was named to see about having a flasher installed at this crossing but nothing came of this, so this crossing still remains as a deadly crossing and continues to take its toll of human life.

Elliott Sproul Defeated In Cook

Nominal Republicans in Cook Co., are still wondering how it all happened that the Democrats carried away the county. In the upheaval the county towns lost a familiar veteran in Congressman Elliott W. Sproul who has served his district 5 consecutive terms and who was defeated for re-election by Edw. A. Kelly, Democrat.

Another well known county man who suffered defeat at the hands of the Democrats was Wm. H. Weber of Blue Island, member of the board of review who was defeated by state senator Ed. J. Huager by 200,000 plurality.

The Cook county board of commissioners has had a decided change. The only Republicans returned were Wm. A. Busse and Geo. A. Miller. Frank Kriz and John Jarnowski were buried in the landslide.

One familiar Republican in the 7th district who managed to outlive the Democratic tidal wave, was Senator Arthur A. Huebsch well known in this section.

Homewood Legion To Stage Show

The annual minstrel show given by Homewood Post No. 483 American Legion is scheduled for the nights of November 20, 21 and 22nd in Central School Auditorium Homewood.

This is the second year that Homewood Post has staged a minstrel show. Last year's success was so encouraging that the committee in charge headed by Randall Brown decided to put on the show three nights this year. Practically the entire proceeds of the entertainment will be devoted to the service work being carried on by the Post. An unusual amount of that work among the needy and jobless ex-service men will be needed this year and it is the hope of the Post that this show will go over big.

TINLEY TO VOTE ON $40,000 NEW SCHOOL ADDN

The matter of building an addition to the Tinley Park public school to take care of the demand for larger quarters has been given much attention of late by the school board and the committee of business men co-operating with the school officials and a meeting held last Tuesday a representative from a Chicago bond house was present and agreed to take charge of the work connected with the calling of a special election to vote on a bond issue with which to finance the construction cost of a new addition. It has been decided to hold a special election in December, date to be announced later to vote a special bond issue. It is estimated the new addition to be the same size as the present school building will cost $40,000. It is also proposed to build a gymnasium if the money holds out.

WILL COUNTY REMAINS IN G. O. P. COLUMN

The Democratic landslide which hit all the rest of the country pretty hard, did not affect Will County to any great extent. This county has always been rock ribbed Republican and did not seem to be affected to any marked degree by Tuesday's upheaval. The chief local contest in which special interest centered was on the office of sheriff. The battle waxed pretty hot between Oliver Flint, republican and James McKeon, Democrat. Flint was elected by a majority of 1886 votes. The total votes cast thruout the county for the two candidates was as follows:

Oliver Flint, Rep. 16,458
James McKeon, Dem. 14,572

Senator Richard J. Barr had only slight opposition on the democratic side and was an easy winner with a big plurality. All the rest of the county candidates were elected on the Republican without opposition.

The only new officer elected was Herbert R. Jones, county treasurer, succeeding Walter Krohn.

Those re-elected are present incumbents of their respective offices: County Judge, Ralph Austin. Probate clerk, Frank Wheeler. County Clerk Albion F. Delander. County Supt. schools, August Maue. Probate Judge, Fred R. Adams.

The only point of the election on which Will County went Democratic was on United States senator. The result was as follows:

Ruth Hanna McCormick . . . 11,026
James Hamilton Lewis . . . 19,800
Lottie Holman O'Neill . . . 1449

Congressman Frank Reid of Aurora, Republican, was re-elected by a large majority.

New Lenox township, always Republican nearly went Democratic for Lewis for whom 206 votes were cast. Ruth Hanna McCormick received 207 votes and Lottie Holman O'Neill 42.

In Frankfort Lewis received 159 votes; McCormick 75; O'Neill 38. In Mokena Lewis received 202 votes; McCormick 75 votes; O'Neill 16.

One outstanding feature in the Mokena precinct was the casting of 50 straight Democratic when as a rule hardly a dozen Democratic votes are cast.

Will county voted in favor of an amendment to the state banking law, for the repeal of the prohibition law and for the establishment of a forest preserve in the little balloting at the election Tuesday. The proposal to amend the state constitution to permit revision of tax laws was defeated. The propositions to permit women to serve on juries were defeated 5,852 to 8,515 and 7,089 to 7,073.

Ready To Discuss Right of Way Matter

C. M. Cleveland is ready to meet with the county board issue and right of way committees any time to discuss the matter of right of way form the Hickory creek south to the Lincoln highway but no one is making a move to bring the matter to a head. The buck is being passed to the district engineer G. M. Lamb at Elgin and he is remaining silent on the subject. He does not even reply to telegrams that have been sent to him asking him if he approves only a straight route or if he would approve any deviation from the original survey. It is not fair to Mr. Cleveland nor to the people of Mokena that this matter is being made the target of disregard. Let the county officials hear Mr. Cleveland anyway and then thrash the matter out with Mr. Lamb. We must have action at once on this matter.

Mrs. Semmler read an article on "Ants" which also was very interesting. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Chas. Geuther on Tuesday, Dec. 2nd at 2 p. m.

German Students Visit Mokena

Sunday afternoon, October 26, 1930, the Dath family was host to the Studenten Verein of Chicago, a club composed of students primarily interested in the culture attendant upon the study of the German language. The Assembly was founded at Englewood Evening High school in the south section of the city that worthy institution well known for its offering of educational pursuits at an extremely low charge, to the well meaning who would succeed in the world.

The group motored in four automobiles to Mokena from the city, and after refreshing themselves saw fit to hike down the road a mile or two, in order to inspect the new bridge. Upon the young folks return, we were favored with some of their hearty singing.

In the early evening, the visitors with the Daths left for their respective city habitats. From all indications they appeared to be interested in the life of Mokena and we trust that we shall see more of them.

Tinley Park Legion Notes

The regular business meeting of the Post, held last Monday evening, was well attended. Several candidates were initiated and are now full fledged Legionnaires. Again Tinley Park Post is the first in the District to reach the quota assigned to it. We have already passed the 100 percent mark but this does not mean that we will stop looking for members, our membership committee will not stop until they have every eligible ex-service man and signed up.

The Post decided to hold a masquerade dance on New Year's Eve at the Saenger Hall, this will be an elaborate affair so you'd better keep this date in mind. Plans are now being formulated to sponsor a card and bunco party at the Legion Community Hall in the near future to replenish our service fund.

In the writeup about the Gilchrist farm home fire last week it was stated that it was said crossed wires started the blaze but it has been declared that this report was incorrect.

Orland Farm Highest Point In Illinois

That the Conrad Bettenhausen farm in Orland township is the highest spot in Illinois, was brought out by government surveyors the past week when they erected a 100 foot pole at this spot in their test of taking latitude and longitude measurements. The surveyors found a government survey stone bearing date of 1806 when they dug a hole on the Bettenhausen farm for the present pole site.

Play Postponed

The play which the P. T. A. of Forest Ridge school district 142 was to have presented Nov. 14 and 15, has been postponed.

Cold Snap Halts Wolf Road Paving

The cold snap has given Wolf road paving a set back, no work being done Thursday. The paving was finished up to Front street Monday at noon and in the afternoon paving was begun on the south end from the Hickory creek north. Paving has been laid up to the Cappel grove.

If the weather moderates it is the hope of the contractors to finish the job within a week or less.

Someone who appeared in a hurry drove an auto on the newly paved road at a point near the Karl Krapp place and left the marks of the auto tires on the pavement. Another fellow tried to drive a truck on the paving near the McPhearson place north of town but was stopped from doing so by Mr. McPhearson and J. V. Hall. The paving must set 21 days before it can be driven on. It will take up to December first before Wolf road will be open for traffic.

Tinley Junior Garden Club News Notes

Our regular meeting of the Junior Garden Club was held Saturday afternoon at the school house with a very good attendance. Thru the kindness of Mr. Boyer, we are looking forward to a very interesting trip to Garfield Conservatory next Tuesday, November 11th.

Tinley Garden Notes

Mrs. Trudie Swisher, Publicity Chairman
November

November is earth's resting time; The corn is bound in shocks; And overhead late lingering birds To morn climes fly in flocks; The calm pools left by autumn rains

Are the mirrors for the sky, And in their cool, sweet restfulness The bare tree branches lie.

The next regular meeting of the Garden club will be held in the home of Mrs. Fred Goebel, November 28, 1930.

Kindly notify the hostess if unable to attend.

Don't forget the trip to Garfield Park conservatory next Thursday, November 13. Cars will leave Tinley Park at noon. Members who care to go will kindly call our program chairman, Mrs. E. Anderson, Tel. 21-J-1, not later than Monday, November 11. Those of you who remember the beautiful chrysanthemums, at the show last year, will want to attend again. Let's go.

ATTENTION

Many of the children who had parts in the operetta that was to have been given November 21, '30, lived in the country. Rehearsal after school brought these children home long after dark. For this reason it was thought advisable to postpone the operetta until spring.

The Garden Club of Illinois will have a program in Room 13, given by W. E. Marshall of New York city. Subject "Lilies". This is to notify members of the Garden Club of this lecture with slides on Nov. 10 at two p. m.

Mrs. Levi Doty, 86, Passes on; Resident of Frankfort for 62 years

Mrs. Levi Doty, aged 86 years, wife of Levi Doty, Frankfort's widely known humanitarian, now in his 94th year, died at her home in the village of Frankfort Sunday afternoon at 12:20 o'clock following a few months illness. Everything that loving hands and nurses could do was done, but could not stay the hand of death.

Mrs. Doty nee Carpenter, first saw the light of this world in Watertown, New York on March 7, 1844. While still a small child she came westward with her parents who located in this section.

They were church loving and God fearing parents and from her childhood up Mrs. Doty grew into a very noble Christian character. She lived her Christianity every day of her long and worthy life.

In 1862 she was united in marriage with Levi Doty who was engaged for many years in great humanitarian work all over the country.

Mr. and Mrs. Doty have resided in the same house in Frankfort for a span of 62 years. Mrs. Doty was beloved by many and had a legion of friends.

Mrs. Doty had expressed a wish that a genuine gospel sermon should be preached at her funeral and no special reference be made of herself, and she also selected the songs she wanted sung at her final rites.

Her final wishes were carried out at the funeral services held in the Frankfort M. E. church Tuesday afternoon. Rev. S. Weishaar preached a masterful gospel sermon. The quartet sang the songs the departed had loved these many years. The great throng of mourners and the beautiful floral tokens bespoke of the high esteem in which the departed was held. Burial took place in the family lot in Pleasant Hill cemetery.

The sympathy of the community goes out to Mr. Doty in the loss of his mate in the sunset of his long and noble life. In spite of his great age, Mr. Doty is still active and able to be about his home and community.

Mrs. Doty is survived by her husband, one daughter, Mrs. Garden and a number of relatives and a host of friends.

Orland Goes 50-50

Orland township nominally rock ribbed Republican did not go under entirely during the Democratic landslide Tuesday, but managed to poll a 50-50 vote with quite a number of split tickets. Over 400 votes were cast in both precincts.

Next Tuesday Is Armistice Day

Next Tuesday is Armistice Day.

The banks will remain closed on that day and some other business places also. This day should be as important to us as any other of our national holidays.

Although a thousand weary miles of ocean lie between us and the graves of those who gave their lives in 1917 and 1918 . . . and although the years be long since their sacrifice was new . . . we have not forgotten. Nor have we forgotten the sacrifice made by those who were spared us and who live today. Armistice Day is their day . . . and.. we join the world in paying homage to our heroes.

Safety Leaders To Draft New Drivers License Law

Safety leaders from practically every county in the state are interested in the convention to be held at Springfield on Nov. 24 and 25 by the Illinois State Conference on Street and Highway Safety to draft a drivers' license law as outlined in the Hoover traffic code. The proposed bill is to be presented to the general assembly which convenes in January.

A meeting of the arrangement committee was called by the chairman, Dr. John Dill Robertson, director of safety for the Motorists Association of Illinois, for Wednesday evening of this week at the Hamilton Club in Chicago. Representatives of the national highway department in Washington attended the traffic meeting in Chicago on Wednesday and Thursday staged by the United States Chamber of Commerce to further the movement for uniform traffic regulation, addressed the members of the arrangement committee.

"It is proposed to draft the same drivers' license law for Illinois that is now in operation in eleven states and which has resulted in an annual reduction of 29 per cent in automobile fatalities", said Dr. Robertson.
"The bill will be a non revenue measure. The adoption of the law will mean a reduction of 500 automobile fatalities for the state taking the results obtained by the other states operating the Hoover measure as a criterion."

Lions Hear C of C Speaker on "Estates"

Taking as his subject "Putting Your House in Order" Mr. Dineen of the Chicago Chamber of Commerce Speakers bureau on Monday evening addressed the Midlothian Lions, showing how estates, big and small, shrank unless properly provided for.

According to the speaker, American business men are far more interested in accumulating money than making provisions for its distribution after their death. In consequence the estates of some of our most prominent business men shrank from 18 per cent to 55 per cent. When wills are not made or are contested they are thrown into probate court, where administration costs are high and property may be sold to secure cash at far less than its real value.

He pointed out that often insurance is left only to the wife; if both are killed in an accident the estate goes to the probate court for settlement, whereas the trouble could have been avoided by the beneficiary being named as the wife if living, otherwise the children of the couple.

The danger of partnerships and closed corporations was also pointed out, showing that reserves should be built up to prevent forced sales on declining markets.

A resolution was passed asking the village board to take steps to have the street in front of the new school made passable, since the work can be done on anticipation warrants. It was pointed out that title difficulties made it necessary to face the school on Harding ave. and that the school board could not legally build roads for the village.

A committee will be named in the near future to consider the formation of the boys band, which was started a year or so ago and then dropped.

Volunteers Save Markham Residence on Monday

Fier caused $200 damages to the Fred W. Holm residence at 159th and Central Park ave., Markham, at 2:30 p. m. Monday. Prompt work by the Midlothian volunteers saved the dwelling, which is occupied by Joe Burr. The firemen used all the water from the booster tank, then formed a bucket brigade. Mice gnawing matches in the attic is thought to have caused the fire.

ST. CHRISTOPHER'S

On Friday, Oct. 31, the Eighth Grade girls surprised the entire school by appearing in Halloween costumes. The children enjoyed their presentation immensely. In the various classrooms the pupils had appropriate Halloween programs.

Guess how these girls surprised the Seventh and Eighth Grades. A big treat, a sweet treat! Come again girls, The Eighth Grade also had an

Legion Issues Challenge to "Ye Editor"

Camp Fire Girls—American Legion Dance: On November 8th, in the 691 will conduct a dance at Goodfellowship Hall, 147th st. and 43rd ave. Midlothian. A snappy orchestra has been engaged, and it is expected that this dance will be one of the best parties of the season. The Legion is sponsoring the Camp Fire Girls, therefore earnestly solicits your attendance, as the girls will be encouraged in their work, and of course, need some funds. The time is eight o'clock.

Bowling: The Legion bowling league has a fine start—only we need more bowlers. This league is open to all Legion and Lion club members, and all are cordially invited to join the gang, meeting every Friday night at 8:30 at the Clarke-Hulett garage, from which point we proceed to the recreation "alley" in Harvey.

Apropos of our dance on November 8th: If Mr. Andrews will attend our next dance, we will agree to have a thief-proof safe on hand in which to place his well-known chapeau, so that upon leaving (assuming he will again sneak out early so that he won't have to remove his shoes before opening his front door) he will be assured of a covering for his editorial head, and further, if he thinks it necessary, we will post a special guard over this valuable keepsake, and hold them strictly responsible.

For the information of Legionnaires living in the McIntosh subdivision, this is to advise that we will soon have a nice new sidewalk alongside of our headquarters, this so they will feel right at home when attending our meetings. It may be necessary to bring a stepladder along to reach this sidewalk, but undoubtedly they are all so equipped. Legionnaires from other parts of town should be watched to see that they don't carry this sidewalk home.

The Road to the Legion

—is never closed.
—never yet has been overcrowded.
—is paved with performances instead of promises.
—still has toll gates; you must be willing to pay the price of traveling thereon.
—gets rather slippery in spots but if you carry enough "grit" and "sand" along you'll pull through.
—is not on the other side of the hill; it runs right by your door.
If you haven't been able to see it, come in and let us show it to you.

My dear Commander:

We are forwarding to you under separate cover one of the color bands in recognition of your colors being carried in the parade at Boston.

The 12th Annual National Convention is now back of us—the parade was the greatest patriotic and most impressive demonstration of a peacetime organization in the history of the United States.

We know that your post feels proud of the part it has taken to make the 12th National Convention the greatest in our history.

On to Detroit in 1931.

Sincerely yours,
Robert E. Haffey.

Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

Surrounded by 105 relatives and friends, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Jebens celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at a reception in the First Evangelical Lutheran church auditorium Sunday evening.

The couple are pioneer residents of Bremen township. Mr. Jebens was born in 1859 in a 12x14 cottage at Kedzie and 141st; they moved into their new home at that location fifty years ago and have lived there ever since. Mrs. Jebens, a daughter of Jacob Ludwig, was born in 1861 at the site of the present Nagle and Stolz yard in Midlothian.

The celebration was a complete surprise to the couple, for they were invited out to dinner by a relative, who took them to the auditorium in place of taking them home. After the guests had been seated at the long tables, with their yellow chrysanthemums, the oldest grandchild, Miss Lillian Heitman, played the wedding march and the youngest grandchild, Myron Jebens, ushered in the couple. They were followed by their children, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Heitman of Blue Island and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jebens of Midlothian.

The grandchildren are: Lois, Irene, Henry, Howard and Myron Jebens; and Lillian and Viola Heitman.

Rev. M. P. F. Doermann, pastor of the church in which they were married and where Mr. Jebens was president of the congregation for 36 years, acted as toastmaster. The Many beautiful gifts, most of which carried out the golden wedding theme, were received by the happy couple.

Cicero Man Gives Terry Merry Chase Thru Robbins

After a thrilling pursuit from Springfield ave., and Claire Blvd., though Robbins, Chief Terry of Midlothian shot the tier from the car of H. W. Thurston, 1422 50th ave., Cicero, and lodged him in the Blue Island jail Saturday night. In the chase Constable O'Neil of Robbins and others wear almost run down, the Robbins constable also firing at the sneider and almost hit Terry. Thurston was held on $100 cash bond charged with driving while under the influence of liquor, resisting arrest and speeding. Trial was set before Judge Stuart Wednesday.

Blue Island Goes to Dogs Next Tuesday

Not half so slow as Chicago with its turtle, tortoise or terrapin parade of last Monday that congealed Boul Mich traffic, Blue Island on Armistice Day will stage a dog parade down Western avenue from Burr Oak to the Lyric theatre.

Preceded by a police detail and heralded by the trumpets of the Blue Island High school band, it will be the biggest, best and barkiest display of dog flesh ever seen in this end of the county.

Any dog, excluding the common or roadside hot dog, may compete if sponsored by a child in this territory. No dog need fear that his manners, looks or dress will ban him from the parade. For all classes and types of dogs are invited.

When the canines and their juvenile sponsors enter the portals of the Lyric Theatre they will find there in judicial array Mayor Frank Kasten, Chief of Police George Fiedler and Henry Vulp of the Lions Club. These worthy gentlemen will review the dogs and award prizes to the ugliest, the funniest-dressed, and the best trained. The children who have entered dogs will then be the guests of Manager Guth at the Lyric's Armistice Day program.

So anybody who knows a kid who has or can get a dog that can compete for one of the three prizes get the kid and her pooch to Burr Oak and Western before ten o'clock Tuesday morning and we'll tie Blue Island traffic into knots, snarls and twists.

The Hard Times dance given by the Woman's Auxiliary of the Legion Post 691 was a hilarious affair. The fun centered about two young men who proved to be Lola Clifton and Alex Stevenson and O. Gromwall gave an excellent exhibition of what can be done by two talented youngsters with a Kazoo and a Ukelele.

No Meeting of School Trustees Held

Acting on legal advice obtained by a member of the school board of district 143, the Bremen township school trustees failed to meet Saturday as had been announced. The legal opinion held that the trustees could not hold such a meeting until after 20 days had elapsed after the filing of the separation petition by Posen. Only eight days had elapsed so the meeting was not called. The secretary must also be notified ten days in advance.

Next week full details of both Midlothian's and Posen's contentions will be given.

Bremen Township Health Topics

Eleanor Gallagher, R. N.
Rural Nursing Service of Cook Co.

We have received the laboratory report on the water from McIntosh water supply, and it says that the water is reasonably safe for drinking purposes; the bacteria count is very low, showing the water is pure, but since taking this sample from the public tap in the Kreis garage, I have been informed that the water there was flooded with oil one day.

Whether this has continued or not I cannot say, but it seems from what I can learn that this oil comes in spurts and after flushing the pipes for a time it disappears. I also have been informed on good authority that when this well was being drilled they struck oil before they struck running water, so this may account for the gushes of oil.

The remedy for this I will leave to a sanitary engineer who knows more about well construction than I do. We are making splendid headway with the physical examinations in the schools. We are all finished but the two Midlothian schools. I hope to get started in St. Christopher's this week, and be ready for the Midlothian Public school as soon as they get into their new building, where we will have room to work.

Blessing Loses Suit Against Village of Midlothian

The Village of Midlothian Saturday won the suit brought against it by ex-chief Geo. Blessing, when a judgment was given the village by Judge Stoefel of Blue Island. The village paid the court costs on this verdict to prevent the case being brought up again in Justice Court.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Petler left on Monday night for Kauts, Ind., where they were called by the illness of an uncle.

Peter Stamp, 88, of 141st and Kedzie, died at Oak Forest infirmary Wednesday of old age. Born in Germany, coming to this country at 16. Made his home in this township since. For 49 years he lived with John H. Jebens.

He leaves no relatives. Mohr, Hickley and Reiser will conduct the funeral from the Jebens' home.

Robbins Alone Remains for Republicans

History was made in Bremen last Tuesday. From Robbins to Tinley and from the Markham yards to the confines of Orland a swelling tide of Democratic votes that grew throughout Tuesday night blotted out the staunchest Republican stronghold in the County of Cook. For the first time since its organization back in pre-civil war days the township went Democratic.

Only one sign of the old era survived: Bremen is still wet. Milwaukee itself could register no stronger approval of beer than did this township. Not a single precinct but stood firm for repeal; Bremen was one great oasis.

James Hamilton Lewis rode out of Bremen on the crest of a plurality that surprised even his organized supporters. The bearded colonel's stand on unemployment, prohibition and Republican perfidy met the enthusiastic favor of the voters and when the ballots were counted the results stood, McCormick 826, Lewis 1616.

Lewis, Traeger and Meyering behind whom was massed the main strength of the Democratic organizations led the ticket by a wide margin. The latter two have for weeks been the favorites to lead after Lewis, the candidates of both parties in total votes received. Both came through as expected.

Bremen will be represented by a new face in the next Congress, Sproul, the old dry warrior, went down before the wet deluge, Kelly his Democratic opponent sweeping everything before him.

Robbins alone in Bremen stood firmly Republican. But even there the Democrats cut in heavily, casting 101 straight ballots against 265 for the Republicans.

How Bremen voted:

HOW TO PRODUCE HATCHABLE EGGS

Poor hatches make costly chicks and are an important factor in cutting down poultry profits. The Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation states. Forty out of every hundred eggs incubated each year fail to produce live chicks, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. About half of the loss is due to low fertility and half to weak germs which do not survive the incubation period.

To obtain good hatches the flock must be bred, fed and managed for that purpose. Only strong, healthy birds produce good hatching eggs with strong germs which will develop into vigorous chicks. Some hens lay eggs with a higher degree of hatchability than others; hens apparently equally vigorous. This characteristic is hereditary and may be developed in the flock by trap nesting and selection of hens whose eggs produce a high percentage of live chicks.

Tests, particularly at the Ohio Experiment Station, have shown that to produce eggs of high hatchability, the hens must receive two things: First, direct sunshine or its equivalent in cod liver oil; second, green feed, or a substitute in the form of alfalfa, clover or soybean hay. Skim milk and buttermilk also will partly substitute for green feed.

After the grass season starts, hens may receive both sunshine and green feed direct from the range, but in the late winter and early spring, when most of the eggs used for hatching are produced, they must be furnished by the poultryman. Besides these sources of vitamins, the ration must contain an ample supply of protein, the Foundation adds.

of Midlothian*Uncle Casey's
Election Boon
To Midlothian

When the final returns came in announcing his overwhelming election Uncle Casey in a transport of joy declared that within twenty four hours he would produce an outstanding proof of his regard for the village of Midlothian. He has shown himself a man of his word.

Today, Uncle Casey through the medium of the Mud of Midlothian donates to the people of this village and to their heirs and assigns in perpetuity the handsome and ornate horse car pictured above.

When the wheels have been removed and sleigh runners substituted the vehicle will be used to transport the children down where Harding avenue ought to be to the new village school. As a special reward, those children who have perfect attendance records will ride on the horses. At present no decision has been reached as to who shall drive but, according to Uncle Casey, the most likely solution of this problem will be to have the teachers do this in turn, each one taking a week.

The interior of the car has been furnished and decorated at tremendous expense. The seats are a warm turkey red plush that will not wash out much even in the heaviest down-pour. By the side of each seat there is an umbrella holder containing two beautiful bone handled rain-shedders which the passengers are expected to use in stormy weather. The ceiling is tastefully decorated in designs worked out in Indian head pennies. To span the mud between the car and the school vestibule, a removable gang plank has been installed on the front platform.

Lake Michigan and 147th Street will soon be closed to winter traffic. Uncle Casey in the postoffice looking over a stack of contributions — my eye. If all the contributions received at this office were printed in two inch type and pasted together they would reach half way between two bumps on 147th street.

If your vocabulary is limited, if you stammer and are at a loss for words, drive down Hamlin avenue and the fluency, vigor and color of your speech will amaze you.

We, the jury, after due deliberation find that death was the direct result of the deceased man's last remark; "So long, Testard. See you at Synakiewicz's."

The Spirit of 1930 Prosperity Campaign Woman's division was launched at the Friday afternoon Quatre Arts Salon presided over by Mrs. Geane Allen at her residence, 645 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Mrs. Mary Delany Holden was elected president of the organization, which is to be national in its scope, and Mrs. Harrier Michael, secretary. It is the purpose of the organization to encourage the women of America to "Buy Now" through the use of prosperity seals originated by M. Bennett Knovot of Chicago, on all of their correspondence, in the same manner as the tuberculosis and Red Cross seals are used. Mrs. Holden states: "The country has been suffering from an intangible financial illness, which can only be cured by getting back to a normal state of mind. Women who have the means must shake off this air. They must understand that by going along normally in their purchasing they are doing the greatest good towards re-employment. Our little messengers for 'Better Business' which are to be attached to all correspondence, can do no harm and we hope that they will in some measure create a sense of confidence in the mind of the woman buyer."

Dr. Clarence P. McClelland, president of MacMurray college for women (Illinois Woman's college), Jacksonville, Ill., announces the offer of a consular scholarship for the next academic year by Chester D. Pugsley, of Peekskill, N. Y., a trustee, who is also maintaining two general scholarships for this year. The consular scholarship is open to children of American consuls or vice consuls of career and carries a cash stipend of $200 and free tuition. Hon. James E. MacMurray, of Chicago, president of the board of trustees and chairman of the board of directors of the Acme Steel company, announced at the last trustees' meeting that Mr. Pugsley would renew his grant for another year for the support of the Institute of Pan American Relations, which will be held October 12-13 next year with a trip through the Lincoln country at Old Salem and Springfield on Sunday, October 11, for the members of the institute.

Illinois led all other states in bovine tuberculosis testing during September. Director Stuart E. Pierson of the state department of agriculture, has been informed. Illinois performed tests on 109,667 head of cattle. New York came second with 101,572, and Wisconsin third with 101,421. The proportion of cattle found diseased throughout the 48 states was slightly less than 151 to each 10,000 tested.

Inspection of 851,367,498 gallons of gasoline and 62,541,755 of kerosene was made during the first eleven months that the state oil inspection act has been in operation, and fees totaling $231,107.41 were collected, according to figures made public by Director Leo H. Lowe, of the department of trade and commerce. Walter W. Miller, superintendent of the division of oil inspection, says that sale of sub-standard gasoline and kerosene has practically ceased and adds that "under the state oil inspection law it is obvious that the public is receiving more fuel value per dollar than it did when gasoline and kerosene were being inspected by the municipalities."

Duck hunters are being urged by Director Ralph E. Bradford, of the state department of conservation, to be on the lookout for birds that bear leg bands and to report any they discover to the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington. Such water fowl have been released from fifty stations from the Arctic regions to Louisiana and from Maine to California in an attempt to get more information about the migratory fowls. A report of the time and place the banded bird was killed, together with the serial letter and number on the band is the information desired.

An error was made in last week's item regarding newly elected officers of the building association league of Illinois. Nicholas L. Johnson was elected fourth vice president instead of treasurer. O. W. Watkup, who has served very acceptably for many years as treasurer, was re-elected to that position.

A fair chance for the 1930 hatch of pheasants is being asked for by Director Bradford of the state department of conservation, who urges that the birds be not released until the close of the hunting season. Some 30,000 eggs were distributed by the division this season and the hatch was very good.

Institution of a uniform compulsory motor drivers' license law, not only in Illinois but also in Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky, Iowa and Wisconsin, as well as the elimination of conflicting automobile traffic regulations and introduction of standardized airport and other aviation practices will form the basis of a conference to be held at the Palmer house, in Chicago, November 5 and 6, by three hundred of the Midwest's industrial and municipal leaders in traffic control. The meeting is sponsored by the chamber of commerce.

The statewide activities committee of Governor Emmerson's commission on unemployment relief has written a letter to Illinois mayors calling upon them to appoint a local committee to co-operate. Suggested activities are:

"As soon as your organization is completed your committee should make a survey of the unemployed in your community; furnish registration cards for all so found, and register them at a central bureau. Steps should be taken, which the American Legion and local labor organizations no doubt will be glad to co-operate in, to see to it that there is no influx in your city of unemployed from other localities. It should be impressed upon everyone that each locality must look after its own problem, calling upon our committee for such assistance and advice as may be needed."

"In order to provide relief, funds will be necessary and many suggestions have been offered, such as the donation by those employed of one day's pay a month; the establishment of special sales; the organization of a 'Buy Now' movement; entertainments, movie nights and the like, wherein each business organization interested in the particular movement agrees to set aside a certain percentage of the proceeds of the particular event for the relief fund. The details may be left to your finance committee; however, we recommend that the money be distributed through your local charitable organizations under the supervision of your committee."

"The most important activity of your committee will be to secure work for the unemployed. Influence should be exercised on all employers to avoid the laying off of any of their help but if the need arises, to reduce the hours of work so that all may have some employment and some funds for their living needs."

A program whose excellence merits a large attendance at the Illinois conference on public welfare at Springfield, November 10 to 13, includes many addresses and ten distinct study courses. These courses are upon the following subjects: Administration of Mother's Aid, A County Program for Social Welfare, Family Relationships and Mental Hygiene, Fundamentals of Child Health, Fundamentals of Social Casework, Recreation and Social Workers' Use of Play, Probation Methods, Child Caring Institutions and Agencies, Problems Within the Children's Institution, Social Work and the Church. Child welfare will occupy more than the usual amount of time on the general program, and at the sessions of the committee on children preliminary recommendations of the governor's commissions on child welfare legislation will be given. A few of the prominent speakers listed are: Gov. Louis L. Emmerson; Director Rodney H. Brandon, state department of public welfare; Dr. Charles P. Emerson, president of the national committee for mental hygiene; President Chase of the University of Illinois; L. G. Holleran, chief engineer Westchester County Park commission, New York; Senator Seabury C. Mastick, of New York; Joel D. Hunter, and Dr. Miriam Vanwaters, president of the 1929 national conference of social work.

The following have been appointed members of the statewide activities committee of Governor Emmerson's commission on unemployment relief: Wayne Hummer, chairman, LaSalle, chairman of board, Illinois Chamber of Commerce; James L. Donnelly, vice chairman, Chicago, executive vice president, Illinois Manufacturers association; Harry C. Hausman, secretary, Libertyville, Illinois Bankers association; Arthur G. Poorman, Chicago Heights, commander American Legion; Joseph D. Zook, Chicago, president, Illinois coal operators; M. A. Graettinger, Chicago, executive vice president, Illinois Bankers association; John Coleman, Mt. Carmel, president, Illinois Municipal league; L. E. Roark, Peoria, president, Illinois Industrial council; R. G. Soderstrom, Streator, president, Illinois Federation of Labor; Fred C. W. Parker, Chicago, secretary, Kiwanis International; Hiram L. Williamson, Springfield, secretary, Illinois Press association.

Saturday, October 25, at 6 p. m., the temporary headquarters of the Springfield post office were closed and business is now being transacted in the new building. Federal court equipment and internal revenue offices are included in the transfer being made to the new building. Construction work has been done rapidly, only about 14 months being required.

The program for the annual meeting of the Illinois Press association to be held at the University of Illinois, November 20, 21 and 22 is one of the best ever prepared as an unusually large attendance is expected because of the unveiling of the busts of twelve famous Illinois newspaper men in the school for journalism at the university.

Indications are that Springfield will be host to the 1933 international convention of the I. O. O. F., as the Illinois grand lodge at its state convention in Springfield adopted a resolution, sponsored by the local chamber of commerce, inviting the sovereign grand lodge to meet at the capital city. The introducer of the resolution, Dr. Arthur G. Nauman of Chicago, stated that the officials of the international order have signified their willingness to meet in Illinois so that they will no doubt choose the city recommended by the state organization.

Should Have Known

What He Would Do

The hero of this one is not exactly as meek as Moses, but yields often to the wishes of a somewhat domineering wife, with mental reservations.

The two went north not so long ago and, when the husband's two weeks of vacation were over, he yielded to her entreaty that she be allowed to stay on the lake for the remainder of the month and assured her everything would be all right at home. Of course, he would take his meals out, but he would sleep at home and take care of everything just as she would were she right there.

The woman came home Sunday to find the grass out of bounds, every window shade awry, and ashes, cigarette stubs, newspapers and whatnot scattered everywhere. But greater than her dismay at the disorder was the shock she received at friend husband's attitude toward her displeasure at the state of affairs.

There was no apology, no remorse on the part of the culprit.

"What is the meaning of this?" she asked, falling into the time-worn question that wives save up for just such a situation.

"It's just my idea of 'Revolt in the Desert'," he answered calmly, and stood his ground right there.—Kansas City Star.

Combine Billiards and Golf

"Snooker golf" is the name of the latest variation of the miniature course game, and it combines some of the features of both billiards and golf.

The course is laid out like the conventional billiard table, with concrete edges on the lawn corresponding to the edges of the table, and the usual number of pockets or holes about the sides. Sixteen balls are used, being racked in a triangle and broken at the start of play, as in pool. The cue is the putter and the cue ball is an ordinary golf ball.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Bright Editors

Some time ago Clement Wood, the writer, purchased a farm and wrote invitations thereto in verse, sending copies to a number of editors. Three editors promptly returned the verses with regrets that they were not desired for publication. But one editor accepted the verses and sent Mr. Wood a check.—Collier's Weekly.

Always Chance for Accident

"I'm afraid of my wife," the timid citizen complained to his lawyer. "Why, she's even threatened to attack me with an ax."

"Huh! Why worry? Did you ever see a woman try to chop a stick of wood?"—Portland Express.

THE STORY

Renewing a childhood attachment, Ernestine Briceland, of a wealthy family, is attracted by Will Todd, newspaper artist, son of a carpenter. Ernestine's sister, Lillian, knowing their father would disapprove, urges her to end the affair, but Ernestine refuses. They make a runaway marriage. Briceland is furious, but helpless, as Ernestine is of age. Loring Hamilton, lawyer, wins Lillian's consent to be his wife. Will and Ernestine begin their married life in a single room in a humble neighborhood. John Poole, Will's best friend, gives a birthday party for Ernestine at Ruby Pastano's resort. Pastano irritates Ernestine by criticizing Will for bringing her to such a place. Will and Ernestine have their first quarrel. Conscious of approaching motherhood, Ernestine opens a savings account.

CHAPTER VI

Ernestine Asks a Favor

When Ernestine reached her mother-in-law's house, she was astonished to find a crowd of people standing about the door, and to see a taxi just driving away, and another car at the curb. When she came into the group, every one fell silent, and Ernestine looked at the faces with curiosity and a sense of fear.

"What's the matter?" she said nervously to a big housewife who opened the door for her.

"Will's been trying to find you—they just brought his pa home. He's dead—dropped dead at his work today, and his ma's real bad. I got Will on the telephone, at the paper, and he came right out here, but he didn't know where you was."

Ernestine stood staring at her, and her hand went up to her heart in a frightened gesture.

"Where's Will?" she asked wildly.

"He's in with his ma. Go still—the doctor's working with her. She's been awful bad the last few days. I've been with her all the time."

"But she didn't tell us."

"She thought she'd be better—she's been sick so long—"

Will looked up as she came in and called her name softly. She went straight to him and put her arms around him. His face was wet with tears—he was not the positive, fiery creature with whom she had quarreled so bitterly the night before, but a little boy, lost and confused. She kissed him quickly, several times, and he said to her:

"I'm glad you got here—Mrs. Bennett didn't know where you were. Oh, Ernestine—mom's so sick—the doctor doesn't know whether she'll ever be better—and dad gone like that—just like a breath. I haven't seen him for three weeks."

"Darling—he'd want to go—quickly," said Ernestine, feeling the futility of words—the emptiness of comfort. It wasn't her father, her conscience told her. She and Will had been neglectful.

The doctor came out of the bedroom and asked Ernestine crisply to get him some hot water. Ernestine took off her fur coat and her little red hat and went into the kitchen. There was a fire in the small range, and awkwardly she put some coal upon it and set the teakettle on to heat. The doctor asked her for towels. She waited on him as well as she could and accepted in silence his sharp reprimand when she was clumsy.

The neighbors had dissolved. Mrs. Schluss, who lived next door, came in and made a little supper. She put it on the kitchen table and said to Ernestine:

"See if you can get Will to eat—he's in there crying."

"I will," said Ernestine, and Mrs. Schluss went on:

"You'll have to stay here, now, I guess. Will's ma shouldn't have been left alone, and now, his pa's dead, there's nobody to look out for her but you and Will."

"Of course I'll come," said Ernestine. "I'd have come before, if I had known that I was needed. We didn't want to be a burden—"

She found this phrase in her mind as she coaxed Will to eat a little supper. Had their motives been entirely unselfish, in going to Erie street? Hadn't they wanted to be alone—away from his people? Should she have stayed with Will's mother, and nursed her, and done the work? There was no question but that Mrs. Schluss, and probably other neighbors as well, thought that she should. Her heart ached with remorse.

Will stayed in the kitchen with her, and Ernestine washed the dishes and put them all away, going to him at times and patting or caressing him. The undertaker came, the doctor left and returned about nine o'clock. He called Will into the other room, but after a time Will came back into the kitchen, where Ernestine sat, not knowing what to do.

"Ernestine—" Will looked at her uncertainly; his eyes appeared small and red with weeping, his nose seemed unusually big in his pale face, and his mouth was like a child's. "The doctor thinks we ought not have the funeral here—because of mother being so ill. The noise, and people coming in and out—he thinks she is ill enough that it might go against her. Do you—do you think your mother—I don't want him buried in a chapel—and he didn't belong to any church. He was an officer in an ethical society—they'll have the services—I don't know what to plan—"

The back door opened and Mrs. Schluss came in while he was talking, and with her another neighbor—Ernestine remembered having met him once before. His name was John Pryor, and he was a printer. Ernestine understood the entreaty in Will's eyes—but her heart sank: Mamma did not like funerals, and least of all would she like this one.

"I'll ask," she said uncertainly, and went to the telephone which was hung on the kitchen wall. It seemed an eternity before Ernestine heard her mother's voice. Flatteringly, she told her what had happened—wondering why she had not called her sooner.

"But, darling," cried mamma, "to think of you in all that trouble—I'll send the car right after you. You must come home to mamma until this is all over—you've never been to a funeral in your life, Ernestine. It will be so hard for you."

"Mamma," said Ernestine with vexation, "you know I can't come—I'm needed here. It's something else I called you for. Mamma, they can't have the funeral here at the house, because Will's mother is so ill it would be dangerous for her, and, of course, Will doesn't want his father buried from the funeral parlors, and he doesn't belong to any church—we don't know just what to do, mamma—" She couldn't say it. She simply could not.

"It's too bad you and Will aren't keeping house," said mamma. "If you had let papa help you you could do this for Will, now."

"You don't want to, mamma? I thought perhaps—your house is so big—that you would do this for Will. I'm asking you to have Will's father's funeral at our—at your house, mamma—" All their eyes were on her—her face was scarlet, her eyes were suffused with tears of humiliation.

"Why, Ernestine," said mamma, in a troubled voice, "I don't know. I'll have to talk to daddy—grandmother's not well. Wait a minute—hold the wire."

Ernestine stood in silence, saying to Will with her lips, "She's asking papa," waiting in the endless interval, certain of refusal—already hurt and resentful.

"Ernestine," mamma's voice was terribly sympathetic, "we're all just as sorry as we can be, but papa doesn't think Mr. Todd would want it. It doesn't seem practical, dear—the funeral home right there in his own neighborhood—lots of people are buried from such chapels every day, darling. Don't ask mamma to do such a hard thing—"

Ernestine hung up the receiver without a word and turned strained great eyes upon Will. John Pryor regarded her with a sarcastic smile. He was a socialist, or an anarchist, or something, Ernestine recalled.

Food "on the Hoof" Not What They Looked For Three unemployed miners having emigrated to South Africa, and not being successful in obtaining employment, decided to journey up country, where, far away from civilization, they came across an explorers' depot, fairly well stocked with food.

After a few days, when the stores had become exhausted, and all three fed up, yet very hungry, one of their number decided to go in search of food, with the avowed determination to bring back something to eat even if it were a lion. He had not searched far when he encountered a lion, which was also in search of food.

The lion at once bounded toward the man, who turned and sped as rapidly as humanly possible toward the hut. On nearing the hut door, which was open, he stumbled and fell, too precipitately for the lion to recover,

"Will," he said with instant kindness, "let me have this funeral for you! It's right here, in the neighborhood, and it won't be a bit of trouble—your father and I belong to the same society—it would be all right with him, I know."

"All right," said Will dully, and turned to the undertaker: "Fix it that way—will you tend to the notices?"

"Will," Ernestine implored him, "it's not my fault—they don't understand—"

He patted her arm and tried to control his feelings. "That's all right, kitten. I know you can't help it—it's just their way." His face worked, and suddenly he clenched his big hand. "My father—he was good enough to work for yours, for half his lifetime—good enough for that—but not good enough for his dead body—"

"Will—Will—don't—don't, darling—oh, you must not say such a thing—sweetheart."

"Let him cry," said Mrs. Schluss wisely, and Will cried upon Ernestine's shoulder—his tears wet her blouse, and she held him, feeling the great sobs rack him, wondering dimly if she would mourn for her father that way.

This would be her home, she resolved, kissing his tear-wet face, holding him to her heart. She would stay with Will and his mother. Her people had denied her husband the kindness that was due among kinsfolk. They had denied her. She felt that she didn't care whether she ever saw them again. If they had done this for Will, everything else would have followed, but now, in common loyalty to her husband, she had to recognize this hurt.

She was almost fainting with weariness. It seemed to her the night would never end.

Papa came in his big car and took Ernestine and Will and Mrs. Schluss to the burying ground. Will accepted this courtesy with dignity. He was not the person to quibble at a time like this.

The services of the Ethical society were brief and dignified. It was Ernestine's first acquaintance with death, and she felt the power of human dignity, felt as she had never felt before the common inheritance, the integrity of Will's father's life.

When they came back, Ernestine sat in the car and talked to her father a few minutes. She told him that she and Will were to stay at the little house, that she was going to try her hand at housework and nursing. She should have done it sooner—she didn't realize, she said, that she was needed.

She ought not reproach herself, her father answered—she had done quite well to avoid being a responsibility to Will's father and mother.

"That wasn't enough," said Ernestine. "I've a new set of values to learn."

"You think the ones you learned at home inadequate?"

"I didn't mean that."

"You've been very quiet with me all day. Do you resent our attitude?"

Ernestine was near to tears. "It hurt Will," she said, her voice shaking. "It forces me to take a stand—I have to be loyal to Will. Papa, I love you all so, but I love Will most. He's my husband. If he's hurt, so am I."

Her father's face had grown very white. He sat studying his gloved hand upon the polished steering wheel.

"That's right," he said after a little.

"After all, that's part of what you learned at home—I hope. I thought—your mother wants me to tell you—we'll establish a trust fund for you and one for Lillian when she is married. I've got my money tied up in this stone merger, but I can settle some on you now, and more later, or I can give you an allowance." He stopped, controlled his emotion, and went on steadily, "I still think your marriage will prove disastrous, but you're my little girl—I want you to be happy. Of course, you can always come home, but as long as you stay with Will, I'd like to do what I can for you, Ernestine."

It was a long speech for him. He was always quick, half a phrase, half a sentence, sufficed him. Ernestine's hands squeezed his arm, she pulled him down and kissed him, and he put his big arm, awkward in his overcoat, about her, and drew her close.

"Before Will and I were married—he thought you might think he wanted my money—wanted some advantage, and I promised him I'd live his life, live on his income. I made a bargain and I must stand by it, papa. But I'm glad you told me—if I should need money, I'll let you know. Thank you."

Lesson for November 9

THOMAS, THE HONEST DOUBTER

LESSON TEXT—John 11:14-16; 14:5-8; 20:24-29; 21:1-2.

GOLDEN TEXT—And Thomas answered and said unto him, My Lord and my God.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Learning to Trust Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Thomas, the Man Who Wanted to Be Sure.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Learning to Trust Jesus.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Value and Peril of Doubt.

The name Thomas means "a twin." His alternate name, Didymus, means the same. From the linking of his name with Matthew in the listing of the disciples, it is commonly inferred that Thomas was a twin brother of Matthew.

Thomas is constantly presented in the Scriptures as a man of skeptical mind, yet of unquestioned character. He was an honest doubter. The Lord is not displeased when men put him to the test. No honest skeptic has ever been left in darkness. The truth of Christ's declaration still obtains, "If any man will do his will, he shall know" (John 7:17).

I. The Fidelity of Thomas (John 11:14-16).

When Lazarus, the beloved brother in the Bethany home, was sick, the distressed sisters, Mary and Martha, sent for Jesus because they had come to know him as more than a mere man. Jesus, after a strange delay, went to Bethany. He knew, and apparently the disciples knew, that going to Judea at this time meant death. His mission in going into Judea was twofold: to strengthen the faith of the disciples (vv. 11-15), and to restore to these sisters their dead brother.

Jesus fearlessly discharged his duty, though his life had been threatened. He plainly declared that Lazarus was dead. Thomas was skeptical as to Jesus' ability to raise Lazarus from the dead. In spite of this fact, his loyalty moved him to cast his lot with Jesus.

II. Jesus, the Way to the Father's House (John 14:5-8).

Jesus asked the disciples to trust in him even as they trusted in God, assuring them that he was going to the Father's house and would come back and escort them to heaven. Christ asserted that he is:

1. The Way to God (v. 6).

Jesus is more than a mere guide to the Father's house or a teacher. He is the way itself.

2. The Truth (v. 6).

He is not merely the teacher of truth, but he is the truth incarnate. In him we have the truth about man, what he is and what he ought to be and what he shall be in the future. In him especially we have the truth about God. Only as Christ reveals God can men know him (John 1:18).

3. The Life (v. 6).

Christ is not merely the giver of life. He is the very essence of life.

III. Thomas Makes Absolute Demands (John 20:24-29).

1. Jesus manifests himself to the disciples, Thomas being absent (vv. 24-25).

He was absent at Jesus' first appearance after the resurrection, just why, we may never know. His absence deprived him of a vision of the Lord. Absence from the assembly of believers always occasions loss. The other disciples went to Thomas with the glad news of the resurrection, but he did not believe their testimony. His stubborn disbelief was such that he doggedly declared that unless he saw the nail prints and put his finger therein and thrust his hand into the Lord's side he would not believe.

2. Jesus manifests himself to the disciples, Thomas being present (vv. 26-29).

Observe:

(1) The Lord's kindness to those who have difficulties (vv. 26, 27). Thomas deserved rebuke, but the Lord quietly supplied the evidence demanded.

(2) The Lord reveals himself to Thomas (vv. 27, 28).

Upon this revelation of himself Thomas was transformed from a doubter to a confessor.

3. The superior blessing of believing without sight (v. 29).

Having patiently furnished Thomas with tangible evidence of his resurrection, Jesus instructed him that to believe in him without such tangible evidence as he demanded was a higher and better state of mind than his.

IV. Jesus Reveals Himself After the Resurrection (John 21:1, 2).

Thomas had learned his lesson. He was on hand the next time the Lord revealed himself.

ORLAND PARK

Halloween was fittingly observed in Orland Park by the High school, which staged a masque carnival advertised as "Maskancum" and about 200 accepted their invitation and did mask and come and were rewarded for their coming by a most enjoyable evening's pleasure.

The school auditorium was appropriately decorated in Halloween's accepted colors and darkened corners and twilight nooks were converted into spooky caverns and enchanted grottos. The costumes were above the ordinary in bizarre conception and many original and unusual ones were to be noted.

The prizes offered for the best male and female characters were won by Earl Reich and Mrs. Hilda Cox.

Halloween games, doughnuts, taffy apple, cider, etc., helped make an enjoyable evening more enjoyable and when the party broke up at a late hour, everyone was glad that they had masked and come.

Auto Accidents

Last Sunday afternoon while the son of Christ Kohl was driving along the road north of the old school house in Mokena his car skidded, hit and broke off a telephone pole in front of the Wm. Hentsch place. No one was hurt, but the car was badly wrecked.

A new Ford Sedan, driven by Chicago people, got beyond the driver's control on Route 51. The driver slammed on the 4-wheel brakes and the car upset in front of the I. D. Marti's farm southeast of Mokena. The occupants of the car were slightly hurt. The car was damaged some what.
